Established by Laurance and Mary Rockefeller in 1969, the Woodstock Inn is nestled in Vermont's Green Mountains, within walking distance of the Rockefellers' farmhouse that now operates as Billings Farm and Museum. All 142 rooms are being renovated this spring, and six new Legacy Suites will be constructed, each one "designed to tell the story of the Rockefeller's philanthropy and commitment to preservation." This winter, the destination is offering the Teach Your Honey How to Ski package (starting at $493 per couple) through March 10. It includes accommodations for one night, a two-hour private ski lesson and lift ticket, two après-ski cocktails on the slopes, and use of the inn's Athletic Club fitness equipment, indoor pool, sauna, steam room, and hot tub.
